

The Journal of Henry Martyn Institute (JHMI) is a semi-annual publication of the Henry Martyn Institute: International Centre for Research, Interfaith Relations and Reconciliation.

JHMI aim is to promote inter-religious understanding with a special focus on the study of Islam. It also seeks to encourage reconciliation between people of different faiths within an overall framework of peace and justice.

Normally 108 pages per issue, the Journal publishes articles, review articles and book reviews. The editors welcome the submission of scholarly articles that examine Islam and other Faith Traditions both in India and worldwide, pluralism, inter-religious issues, reconciliation and peacemaking. Articles that examine the role of Islam, Hinduism and the nature of Christian-Muslim and Christian-Hindu relations and analysis of the theological, historical social, political, global ethics, gender and cultural responses to Muslim interaction with Christians and other societies and cultures, both minorities and as majorities, are also welcome.
